Colliers International Joins GPM and Village Green Global to Manage Sustainable Development Projects

Detroit MI, Newport Beach CA - October 2nd, 2017 a contract was signed this week between Colliers International, GPM Global (GPM), and Village Green Global (VGG) to manage a series of projects that the GPM-VGG are developing.

The projects, which include the International Institute for Peace and Sustainable Development (IIPSD), a graduate institute that focuses on regenerative development will be the first carbon negative graduate school in the world will begin construction in Costa Rica, and Malaysia in early 2018.

Jonathan Winikur the Executive Managing Director of Project Management at Colliers stated “Colliers International is proud to be an integral part of the IIPSD team. Based on our knowledge of each of the planned initiatives, there is little doubt that the local and global impacts will be significant and have a positive impact. We have also learned that Colliers and IIPSD’s shared commitment to sustainability, excellence, and partnering for success align closely with one another and will undoubtedly support the ultimate goal of implementing each of these projects as planned. Our role as Project Manager is well suited to the immediate and long-term needs of IIPSD as our depth of experience with similar programs coupled with our global reach as an organization will help ensure the ability to execute each of these diverse projects.”

Along with the IIPSD, an eco-tourism project in Croatia and community development projects in the Solomon Islands will be managed by the team at Colliers.

GPM President —Joel Carboni stated “Colliers has a reputation for performance and quality and these projects are extremely complex. It gives us tremendous peace of mind to have them as part of our team.”

All projects are being syndicated through Lance Energy Capital, New York with a combined project value of USD $498M.

VGG CEO and Founder — Doug Smith stated “Having Colliers International join our team adds to reducing our project Investor Risk and to ensure greater success in constructing all projects. In the long term, Colliers International will play a strategic role in tenant acquisition and management.”
